

SEPTEMBER 2006 ACTION ALERT

Official Hands Off Assata Campaign

Support Nubian School of Trinidad & Tobago

Goal: Support Afrikan-centered Education and Self-Determination in the Diaspora!

Situated in a valley in the Morvant district in Trinidad and Tobago, the Nubian School is an example of what can be done by ordinary people committed to improving their own social situation.

This School was first established by Mrs. Susan Edwards and later on supported by Self Empowerment Learning Fraternity.

At present, the school does not receive government assistance and we have not appealed for such aid. Parents and other community members contribute time and money towards the development of the school. While the school is based in a building in the community, much of the tutoring takes place in different community environments to heighten the experiences of the students and to keep the learning process exciting.

The school incorporates all available world expressions and experiences into the social program. The Internet helps bring views and ideas not readily available in schoolbooks into the classroom. Historical and other social awareness books and lectures are available for both adults and children

Agriculture, historical awareness and social development are the foundation pillars for all other forms of academic tuition.
